Description :

PDF-c7943 | This Palgrave Pivot offers comprehensive evidence about what people actually think of “nudge” policies designed to steer decision makers’ choices in positive directions. The data reveal that people in diverse nations generally favor nudges by strong majorities, with a preference for educative efforts – such as calorie labels - that equip individuals to make the best decisions for their own... Human Agency and Behavioral Economics: Nudging Fast and Slow (Palgrave Advances in Behavioral Economics)
